

Commercial Vehicle Group Hosts Trailways Board of Directors

September 28, 2011, New Albany, OH—Commercial Vehicle Group (CVG) had the honor of hosting a Trailways Directors’ Meeting at its New Albany (near Columbus, OH) headquarters. Trailways, a Virginia-based corporation, is comprised of independent motorcoach companies that include the most significant tour and line haul bus operation in the for-hire passenger ground transport industry.

CVG’s Ray Miller extended the invitation to Trailways to hold its 2011 Fall Board of Directors meeting in New Albany so its directors would have an opportunity to tour the company’s R & D facility and learn more about its people and extensive products.

The meeting was a win for Trailways because it gave its leadership an opportunity to meet onsite at a supplier’s location for the first time in their 75-year history; and, a win for CVG because it gave the company an opportunity to introduce their many innovative products, including the GSX driver’s seat and the new National Seating 3-point belted coach seat to Team Trailways.

Following the meeting, Ray Miller reported that Trailways’ Directors were very impressed by CVG’s capabilities and technology; and, viewed the visit as a tremendous learning experience. “We expect to grow the coach seat business significantly over the next several years,” said Ray Miller. “This was the perfect kick-off to our marketing efforts for our new products.”

Trailways Chairman, Ron R. Moore (Burlington Trailways, IA) stated the onsite and in-depth visit opened new partnership opportunities for Trailways’ team of bus carriers.

“We were honored to witness, first hand, the renewed interest, restructuring and dedication CVG is committing to our industry; and pleased that National Seating has returned to the market place as a highly competitive player. We were excited to see the immense contributions they have made to safety, cutting-edge technologies, and the quality levels supporting their seating products; it was an extraordinarily informative and successful visit. We look forward to partnering with the CVG team,” said Moore.
